Radical Writing with YA Author Linda Oatman High

Linda Oatman High is an award-winning journalist and author. She lives in Lancaster, PA.

YA Author Linda Oatman High is coming to the library on Saturday, October 15th to conduct two writing workshops, one for middle school students (at 2:00 PM) and one for high school students (at 4:00 PM). Radical Writing was developed by Linda specifically for teens and promises to be an awesome, non-boring writing workshop guaranteed to spark creativity! Here are a few of the exercises Linda swears by for producing great work:

- Extreme Sports Poetry
- Radical Reporter: Using News Headlines To Ignite Ideas
- Survivor Island
- Creating Cool Comics: A Mix of Words & Pictures
- TheTattooed Dude: Bringing Characters to Life
- Rappin' Writing: Rhythm Plus Poetry Equals Songs
- Getting Published: Suggestions for the Internet and Print

Each participant will leave with at least one finished piece of writing. Please register. These workshops are funded by the Bernard Carl and Shirley Library Fund of the Community Foundation of Tompkins County.

A Discussion with Region 7 Paranormal Research

Do you believe in ghosts? With a healthy dose of skepticism and modern technology, the investigators at Region 7 Paranormal Research hope to get to the bottom of that age-old question. R7 consists of a team of serious and dedicated paranormal researchers committed to applying the scientific method to investigations of paranormal phenomena. They perform investigations in central NY state covering the Rochester, Finger Lakes and Syracuse regions. Members of the R7 Team will talk about how they conduct investigations, show you their equipment and discuss their findings using audio and video evidence.

Are paranormal phenomena real? Find out on Saturday, October 22nd at 4:00 PM.

Check out R7 online at www.r7paranormal.com.

Vietnam Mailbag: Voices from the War, 1968-1972

From the early 1960s through March 1973, hundreds of thousands of men and women served in Vietnam in an undeclared and highly controversial war. During the peak years of that conflict - from May 1968 through December 1972 - a young reporter, Nancy E. Lynch, relayed the hopes and fears, the joy and the tears, of hundreds of soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines from Delaware through the Vietnam Mailbag column she wrote in the Wilmington Morning News.

At the start, Nancy wrote one column a week. As the mailbag filled at an ever faster pace, she progressed to two columns a week, and then to three. No matter how much she wrote, there never seemed to be room to tell all the stories. But Nancy kept all those letters, and the pictures sent with many of them, neatly folded in their original envelopes. Now, nearly 40 years after she began writing her column, Nancy is reopening the Vietnam Mailbag to give a new generation a fresh look at the first-person accounts of troops in the combat zone.

In countless ways, the Vietnam War transformed American society, and the experience of serving in this unpopular conflict would have an equally profound impact on the lives of the men and women who served there. In Vietnam Mailbag: Voices From the War, 1968-1972, Nancy tells the story of troops at war - through the letters they wrote to her a generation ago and through a series of moving interviews with veterans who now share their views on how the Vietnam experience shaped their lives.

On Thursday, October 13th at 7:00 PM, Nancy will read from and talk about the book that has been decades in the making. The book and a companion DVD will be available for purchase. Readers may check out the library's copy and learn more at vietnammailbag.com (the above description is excerpted from the website). Room capacity 50.
